This book looks at the role of the information professional in the changing environment in which they now work. Information professionals find themselves in a paradoxical situation: there is increased interest in information and its management stimulated by the Internet and simultaneously diminished recognition by employers and the public at large of the theory and practice of library and information science. This has resulted in the 'invasion' of traditional library services by a densely written book with much to digest. The Australian Library Journal. About the Author: Sue Myburgh is currently Program Director of two postgraduate programs in Knowledge Management and Internet Comm
